THE NINETEENTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE
NEWFOUNDLAND AND BRITISH NORTH AMERICA
SOCIETY FOR EDUCATING THE POOR.

PERMITTED in the good providence of God to meet the Friends of the Newfoundland and British North America School Society on this its Nineteenth Anniversary, your Committee feel it to be a pleasing duty which they have to perform in being enabled, through God's mercy, to report most favourably of the Society's general operations, and that the preceding year has been distinguished still more by the developement of its principles, the very marked countenance which they have received, and their acknowledged adaptation to promote the great cause of Christian Education, in subserviency to the labours of the Missionary Clergy, both in Newfoundland and in Canada; and the Committee believe the Society has only to be carefully and candidly examined, to claim and receive such support, as would place it in the position they desire to see it occupy, in rivalry and opposition to none, but auxiliary and subordinate to the Church in the Colonies—as a Colonial Scriptural Education Society, a desideratum by many long felt and acknowledged.

It were easy to multiply arguments to demonstrate the necessity of a separate establishment for this purpose, if the young in the Colonies are to receive right principles, and the clergy to be effectually assisted in their extensive districts and overwhelming duties.

But this your Committee believe to be unnecessary: they would therefore content themselves with referring to the judgment of one who, on mature deliberation and personal inspection, has recorded of the Society as he has found it in operation in his diocese, that its "schools have been already among the most prominent blessings which our gracious Lord has vouchsafed to that dreary land." And it is matter of satisfaction to know, that the excellent Prelate of Newfoundland has concurred in the opinion that the Society is deserving of taking a higher position, as an Education Society, than it now does.

These observations, the Committee believe, will be fully borne out by the gratifying Report they have now to submit of its proceedings during the past year. With one exception their Report is altogether of a cheering character, and that one calls for deep submission to His sovereign wisdom who cannot err, though He giveth not account of any of His matters.

Immediately after the last anniversary, your Committee sent out to Newfoundland a gentleman to superintend the Society's schools, and to conduct its affairs, in the room of the Rev. Mark Willoughby, who is now occupying an important charge as the Society's Superintendant in Canada. He reached the island on Whit-Sunday, and entered at once upon his duties, in a manner which promised the greatest benefit to the Society. He had so far approved himself as not only to merit general good-will and esteem, but the Bishop had also intended to admit him to holy orders, with a view to his being the more useful in the discharge of his official duties.

It pleased God, however, to order otherwise; and after the short period of six weeks, in the midst of his opening prospects, in his usual good health, and without the least previous warning, to remove him from his labour, which he had anticipated with so much delight, to his rest and his reward above. He died on the 6th of July, leaving a widow and three children to lament his loss. The Committee recorded their sentiments of this mournful event in the following resolution:—

“That this Committee have heard, with deep and sorrowful emotion, of the awfully sudden and unexpected death of Mr. Saxby, the Society's late Superintendant in Newfoundland; and referring to his high testimonials, to his able correspondence and conduct during the short period he has been permitted to discharge his duty, as well as to the excellent character given him by the Bishop of Newfoundland and the general esteem manifested for him in the island, do record their strong opinion of the loss which the Society has sustained by his early removal, and desire to convey to his bereaved widow and children the expression of their deep sympathy under so mysterious and afflictive a dispensation, prayerfully commending them to Him who is the father of the fatherless and the husband of the widow.”

It is but just that the Committee should publicly express, on behalf of his afflicted widow, the sympathy and assistance which she received from the Bishop and other friends in Newfoundland and in this country, more especially from the Society's noble President. Nor must they omit gratefully to acknowledge, on behalf of the Society, the anxious interest which the Bishop evinced on this melancholy occasion, and his readiness to overlook its general affairs until arrangements could be made for another superintendant. Happily, at that time your Committee had the advantage of personally conferring with the Bishop's chaplain, the Rev. T. F. H. Bridge, M.A., Rector of St. John's, Newfoundland, to whom on a former occasion the office of Superintendant of the Society's schools had been tendered, but which circumstances then obliged him to decline. They have now, however, the satisfaction to announce, that, in concurrence with the recommendation of the Bishop, Mr. Bridge has accepted the appointment; and that already the most gratifying proof has been afforded of the benefits which the Society is reaping, under the blessing of God, from his active and judicious superintendence.

The Committee cannot do better than largely quote from Mr. Bridge's correspondence, which will best shew the present state and progress of the Society's operations. But before they do this they would just advert, with much thankfulness, to one point, to which reference is made in his communications.

It will be remembered, that in the last Report fears were expressed that the annual grant of 300*l.* which the Society had received from the local Legislature for five years, the period to which the act extended, would not again be renewed ; but this has happily been prevented, for the present year, by the timely interposition of the Bishop, who addressed a letter to the Governor, Major-General Sir John Harvey, K.C.B., as "diocesan and visitor of the schools," praying that his Excellency would prevent the sad consequences of closing any of the Society's schools, which, without a renewal of such grant, must in all probability have been the case. To this application his Excellency most readily assented, by ordering the sum of 300*l.* to be paid to the Society out of the funds of the public treasury.

This laudable and benevolent act the Committee cannot refrain from recording, with feelings of liveliest gratitude ; and they would take this opportunity to express their grateful acknowledgments to his Excellency for continuing to the Society the patronage which his predecessors had given, and for the assurance which he so kindly gave them on his leaving England, that he would favourably regard its operations and promote its objects.

Your Committee have also thankfully to acknowledge that, besides the kindness of the Bishop in obtaining this grant of 300*l.*, his Lordship has ordered the sum of 50*l.* to be paid out of the funds of the Newfoundland Diocesan Church Society, for the general purposes of the Society.

In consequence of the short time which has elapsed since Mr. Bridge's return to Newfoundland, and his yet partial visitation of the schools, the Committee are not prepared to announce the exact number which at present are in actual operation; but they have the satisfaction to know, that several branch schools which had been closed have been reopened,* and in some instances new schools commenced.

Mr. Bridge writes under the following dates:—

“Oct. 11, 1841.—After a passage of thirty-five days, it pleased our gracious God and Father to bring me and mine to our destination on the 6th ult.

“On my arrival I found nearly all my reverend brethren here anxiously looking out for me, as they were awaiting a visitation which our kind Bishop was deferring till I should make my appearance. Yesterday this was held, and one great object I have in writing now is to tell you that his Lordship has augmented the debt of gratitude and obligation our School Society already owes to him, by the handsome and unequivocal testimony which he has borne to its usefulness, as well as by the urgent appeal which he addressed to the clergy in his charge, to do all in their power to further the Society's objects, by countenancing and co-operating with our teachers, by influencing parents to send their children to the schools, and by exerting themselves to procure for us increased pecuniary local aid. Nor is this all his Lordship has done for us. On Saturday he conveyed to me the gratifying information that he had conferred with the Governor on the subject of the annual legislative grant of 300*l.* and had obtained from his Excellency a promise that he would, on his own responsibility, without waiting for the meeting of the Assembly and their vote, issue to me his warrant to draw for that sum on the treasurer. At this I know you and the Committee will rejoice as much as I do, who will be hereby relieved from an anxiety, and delivered from difficulties of a pecuniary nature, which were pressing hard on our minds.”

“Nov. 9.—At Harbour Grace I inspected the Society's school, and examined the scholars then present, to the number of about fifty or sixty, and found them tolerably proficient in biblical knowledge, the Catechism, and mental arithmetic. The attendance was small, owing to various causes, but chiefly to an influenza and hooping-cough, now prevalent among children in many parts of the island; and to the inability of many of the parents to provide their little ones with clothes and shoes. At this inspection the Rev. G. A. Addison, the missionary at Harbour Grace, was with me; and he has promised, with his wonted kindness,

* “The Society has established fifty-two principal and branch schools, thirteen of which were temporarily suspended when the last report was received from the acting superintendent; besides which, the teachers conduct Sabbath and evening schools. Nearly 11,000 scholars, in the whole, have been admitted, of which 3234 are now receiving instruction.”—Vide last “Report,” p. 4.

to exert himself for the establishment of a Dorcas Society, by the benevolent operations of which many children, now unwillingly deprived of them, may be enabled to enjoy the blessings of a Christian education.

"From Harbour Grace we proceeded to Spaniard's Bay, where I regret to have to tell you we found Mrs. Griffin confined to her bed with influenza, and the school considerably thinned by the general prevalence of that epidemic: indeed so large a number of children were already attacked by it, and the disease was daily spreading so extensively, that your teacher was thinking of closing his school for a season. Whilst we were in the school-room we saw several little ones droop their heads, and sent home unable any longer to hold up: still here were upwards of fifty children present, and their examination in reading, in the Scriptures and arithmetic, was creditable both to the teachers and the taught.

"On the 5th ult. I visited and examined the branch school at Bishop's and Island Coves, kept by Mr. Crossman; and so gratified was I by the proficiency of the children and their deportment, that I have decided on giving, in accordance with the request of the Bishop and the recommendation of the principal teacher of the district, the Rev. J. Kingwell, a gratuity of 5*l.* to their diligent and useful instructor. The Bishop has directed me to present him with 2*l.* as a donation, in testimony of his lordship's approbation of his conduct; and to this the Rev. Mr. Addison has added another 1*l.* I trust the Committee will approve of what I am doing in this case, and I doubt not they will be gratified at the testimony borne by such high authority to one of their servants, especially when I add that the privations of this poor man and his family during the last winter were truly appalling.

"I have only to add now that I have engaged a young man to keep a daily school, and a Sunday and adult school, at Rock Harbour, a new field in Placentia, and the mission of Burin. He sailed hence yesterday morning, with the missionary, the Rev. G. Cowan, for his post."

"Nov. 18. — With regard to schools, I have no doubt that the Committee will be gratified to hear that I have made arrangements for reopening, during the ensuing half-year, several of the Society's suspended schools. For Port de Grave I have engaged a young man and his wife. Mr. Jos. Baggs, who received his education in our school at Spaniard's Bay, under Mr. Griffin, has consented to conduct the school at Bay Roberts till May 25th; and I have secured for Coley's, or Cold East Point, a hamlet of that mission, the services of a Mr. Mosdell, who has been before employed as a branch teacher in that place. At Petty Harbour I am about to locate the eldest son of my clerk: this young man, with the teacher destined for Port de Grave, are now undergoing a course of training in the central school here.

"Of Mr. J. Ryall, the Society's teacher at Salmon Cove, and who also acts as reader in the settlement, I have lately heard from the Rev. M. Vicars, the missionary of the district, an anecdote, which I am sure you will deem worthy of being related. Not long since he read to the congregation assembled in the school-room on the Lord's day a sermon, published in the 'Church of England Magazine,' and placed in his hands by Mr. Vicars, on the duty and privilege of family prayer. The people were much impressed by it; so much so, that several heads of families went afterwards to your teacher, telling him they acknowledged the truth of what he had read to them, and expressing their earnest desire to do thenceforward as they had been exhorted: but, added the poor people, there is a serious, and, as it seemed to them, an insurmountable obstacle in their way—‘we cannot read.’ Your teacher was at first not a little puzzled by this; but an expedient for getting over the difficulty was suggested to his mind: he proposed to the heads of families that they should meet him two or three evenings in the week, in the school-room, and they consenting, he proceeded on those occasions to read to them, instructing them to repeat it word for word after him, one of the forms from the present Bishop of London’s ‘Family Prayers,’ published by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge. And this process he persisted in till the parents had thoroughly learned the prayer; and now, in many a poor fisherman’s tilt, the family altar is reared daily, from which ascends up the voice of sincere supplication—the incense of an offering acceptable to the Father through the mediation of his dear Son. As the school under Mr. Ryall’s charge (which numbers upwards of sixty children in attendance during the summer) is much thinned through the winter by the removal of many families into the woods, I have proposed to him, and he is willing, to keep school three days in the week at Salmon Cove, and the other three at Bareneed, a settlement now altogether destitute of the means of education: this plan, which is one you strongly recommended at our parting interview, will, I trust, be—temporarily at least—acted upon in this case.”

And then, after referring to several other branch schools being opened, Mr. Bridge proceeds:—

“All this is very gratifying, and I hope it will be so considered by those who are already our friends, and by the Christian public at large in England. But at the same time it must be remembered, that this extension of our operations is attended with a heavy expenditure, which can only be met and maintained by increased support at home. Press this fact on the attention of the public at home. I now despair of having our band of teachers reinforced from England this year, but let me urge on the Committee to send us out more labourers as early as possible in the spring. We must continue to cry out, ‘More money! More men!’ This is a momentous crisis in the educational concerns of this colony. Our respected and laborious diocesan has opened, in all parts of the island, new missions: our missionaries feel that the Society’s schools will be as right arms to them, and from all quarters do they apply to me to send them teachers.

“I yesterday had some important conversation with the Bishop about the Society. I spoke to him of my earnest desire, already communicated to you, to see the Society come before the public with a more extensive object, proposing to become for the colonies what the National Society is for the mother country; and his Lordship fully approves. I hope you will not lose sight of this.”

“Dec. 10.—In the district of Trinity, four suspended schools are again in operation, viz. English Harbour, Salmon Cove, Bonaventura, and Cuckold’s Cove. I have recently heard of the teacher who accompanied the Rev. Mr. Cowan to Placentia Bay, and Mr. C. opens up to us very encouraging prospects. I have engaged a branch teacher for Catalina, in the mission of Bonavista, where there are two other branch schools in a thriving state. I regret that the stoppage of our communication with the more remote parts of the island prevents my receiving, and therefore conveying to you, further and fuller information. I trust, however, from what I have stated, it will be seen by the Committee, the present supporters of the Society, and the friends of a Scriptural Education on the principles of our venerable Church, that whilst there is abundant cause for thankfulness to Him by whom alone we can do any thing, there is abundant cause for renewed exertions and increased liberality on behalf of the great work in which the Society is engaged — a Society which has been so well designated by our respected and discerning Bishop, ‘The main bulwark of the Protestant faith in this benighted land.’”

“Jan. 11, 1842. — The school at Petty Harbour is going on admirably under the young man I have placed there; the daily attendance is from fifty-seven to sixty, and on Sundays he has about ninety scholars.”

“Jan. 25. — On the afternoon of Christmas-day I visited Quidi Vidi, held service there, and examined the school before the congregation. I wish some of our friends in England could have seen how the children acquitted themselves: they evinced a thorough acquaintance with the Catechism of our Church, the leading doctrines of the Gospel, and the precepts of the law; and there was one little boy, about six years of age, who could repeat the whole of the sermon on the mount, as well as answer such questions as I proposed upon it. In more immediate connexion with the day school, I have one most interesting circumstance to mention. It pleased God, three or four years since, to make me the instrument of converting an aged Roman Catholic: he was then upwards of seventy; he is now, at nearly eighty years of age, a scholar in the Society's school, and is making astonishing progress. It is delightful to me when I visit his hut to find this aged pilgrim poring over the Word of God, which he is now in some measure able to read for himself. I consider this to be a wonderful instance of the power of Divine grace, for not only has he seen his way clearly to a renunciation of the errors of Romanism, but he has seen his way as clearly to a hearty and sincere acknowledgment of the truth as it is in Jesus. May this fact stimulate the friends of the truth at home!”

“Jan. 26. — Last week I visited and examined the Society's school at Petty Harbour, now under the charge of Mr. W. Earle, a new branch teacher; and most delighted was I at the state in which I found the establishment. There were seventy-three children in attendance, and in the examination to which I subjected them in reading, spelling, the Scriptures, the Catechism, and mental arithmetic, they acquitted themselves greatly to their own credit and that of their present master, as well as of the excellent teachers, the Rev. W. Netten and his wife, who so long and so faithfully laboured amongst them. This is Mr. E.'s first essay at teaching, and I cannot but think and hope that his proficiency is attributable to his having undergone a brief training under Mr. Netten in the central school here.”

After these interesting extracts from their Superintendent, the Committee feel it unnecessary to lengthen their Report by giving information respecting the schools from the journals and letters of the different teachers,* all of whom, through the mercy of God, have been spared to labour in their respective charges with very slight interruption. They have continued throughout the year to distribute religious tracts and books, which have been placed at their disposal, and to circulate the Holy Scriptures and the Book of Common Prayer. In the discharge of this interesting branch of their labours they have been indebted to the British and Foreign Bible Society, which, in addition to former grants, has added during the past year 300 Bibles and 500 Testaments; making together, 6,995 Bibles and 10,377 Testaments: a gratifying fact, surely, to all who know the value of that precious word, which is able to make men wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus; and one which calls for deep gratitude to Almighty God, and earnest prayer that so valuable a Society may never cease its labours so long as there shall be found an immortal being destitute of the words of eternal life.

The Committee have also gratefully to acknowledge a grant of Prayer-books, to the amount of 30*l.* from the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, on the application of the Rev. T. F. H. Bridge, the Society's Superintendent, countersigned by the Bishop of Newfoundland.

It is a gratifying circumstance to know that the Prayer-book is so highly prized, and so much coveted, by numbers to whom but little opportunity has been afforded of enjoying the public ministrations of the sanctuary. Nor can your Committee doubt that the happiest results have followed its dissemination, and that its form of sound words has, under God's blessing, been the means of preserving many in the truth, amid abounding ignorance and superstition.

* These will be given, from time to time, in the "Occasional Papers" printed by the Society.

One of the teachers writes : —

“ Your teacher greatly deploras the want of Prayer-books (Common Prayer); he is sorry to say that, during the past winter, there have been men that have come forty miles for Prayer-books, besides the many calls from adjacent islands, none of which could be supplied. The children, too, have been greatly kept back, not only from becoming familiar with the order and utility of the book, but also from the responses in the church on the Lord’s day.”

From another : —

“ In the month of September, last year, your teachers received a parcel containing sixty Prayer-books, for which they would tender their best thanks. So much were they in request, that they were soon all dispersed; and had the number been fourfold, they would scarcely have supplied the demand made for them.”

Since the last anniversary, Messrs. Meek and Netten, two of the Society’s teachers, have been admitted into holy orders; thus carrying out the Bishop’s plan of locating in destitute settlements a “ deacon schoolmaster,” whose duty it will be to teach the children in the school and to take the pastoral charge of the people in their district: a measure, in the peculiar circumstances of Newfoundland, in every way best fitted to promote the spiritual good of the people.

Immediately on Mr. Meek’s ordination he proceeded to the Bay of Islands, 500 miles from St. John’s; to which place he had been appointed, with a view to the commencement of the Society’s operations in that part of the island. The importance of this step, which your Committee were enabled to take through the liberal assistance of a benevolent lady, may be gathered from the fact that this settlement, like many others, had been “ without religious or moral instruction of any kind, and unvisited, except on a single occasion, by any minister of the Gospel.”

The following extract from Mr. Meek’s letter on his way thither will be read with interest, dated Bay St. George, Sept. 2, 1841 : —

“ You will have heard ere this of the circumstances connected with my appointment to this district. My ordination, which took place in St. Thomas’s church on the 25th of July, was followed by my departure with my wife, four children, and servant, on the 30th, for this place; which, through the Divine protection, we reached in safety on the 11th of August. No one knew any thing of our coming, and we ourselves knew as much of Van Dieman's land as of Bay St. George. Imagine, then, sir, the amazement of the people and our own feelings on landing: we were carried on shore on men's shoulders, taken to the house of a Mr. Forrest, introduced ourselves as well as we could, and were kindly and hospitably entertained. As there was no spare bed in the place, Mr. F. had at once to proceed through the place to procure us a dwelling, if possible; and succeeded in getting a small house belonging to a person who, a few days previously, had taken his family with him to get medical assistance for his sick wife. Here we have remained ever since, missing very much the comforts of our house at Bonavista; but treated so kindly by the people, that we can well afford to submit to some minor inconveniences.

" Bay St. George contains rather more than 500 persons, of whom not quite 200 are Protestants actually resident; the rest are French: but about twenty miles distant, at a place called the Barrisways, there is another settlement, with near 100 Protestants, who are so intimately connected with this place, in consequence of their coming here at certain seasons to fish, that they may almost be included as part of the population. With the exception of a visit by Archdeacon Wix, and another by Mr. Nisbett, no Protestant clergyman or minister of any denomination has ever been here: the consequence is, as may be inferred, baptisms and marriages have been performed in the best way that could be devised, by getting any person (sometimes a boy) who could read to perform the service. The place has no church, no school, no religion. I have not yet met with a child who can read; and, in fact, in every respect but the name, the place may be considered as heathen.

" My instructions in coming here, from the Bishop, had a special reference to the Bay of Islands, about 100 miles distant by sea, the pre-eminent depravity of which has attracted the Christian sympathy of some lady in England. I purpose proceeding thither as soon as I can get a conveyance, when I shall be better able to give you a report.

" The people here are determined on keeping us, if possible: their kindness is unbounded. I hold service in the largest room I can procure, and it is well filled. They talk of building a house as soon as the people can be got together from their trading excursions, which at this season occupies them. A chapelry school-house is also to be put up; and should any one be placed here I have no doubt that, under the Divine blessing, there would soon be a flourishing church and school in this neglected place, and this desert rejoice and blossom as the rose. I hope that the Christian lady will give Bay St. George her aid as well as the Bay of Islands, and that you will send us some books, especially Bibles and Prayer-books, for we have only eighteen Testaments and no Prayer-books."

The Committee indulge a hope, that the day is not far distant when this part of the island, along which are thousands of inhabitants who have hitherto been shut out from all moral and religious instruction, will possess in its name rous settlements its chapelry school-house; and they would earnestly call upon all who possess the ability to assist the Society in its anxious endeavours to extend the blessings of scriptural education to these their fellow-subjects and fellow-Christians perishing for lack of knowledge.

Your Committee, in concluding this part of their Report, cannot omit to notice, with much satisfaction, that the Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts has consented, on the recommendation of the Bishop, to allow to each of the teachers of the Society who have been admitted into holy orders, and are still conducting their schools, the sum of 50*l.* per annum; thereby sanctioning the arrangements which have been most wisely and beneficially adopted in furtherance of the great cause of Christian education in which the Society is engaged.

From Newfoundland, your Committee turn with equal satisfaction to CANADA.

At the last anniversary, thirty schools were reported to be in operation, at an expense to the Parent Society of not more than 300*l.*, and a promise held out that thirty more would be opened if a like sum were granted by your Committee. This statement was put forth in an "Appeal to the Public," the result of which, through the blessing of God, has enabled them to make a grant of 200*l.* additional for the present year; and from a communication just received from Mr. Willoughby, it appears that already several new schools have been opened, and that forty-two daily, besides Sunday schools, are now in actual operation, which will speedily be increased to the number that was promised in proportion to the amount of the grant.

But it is not to these alone the Committee point, as showing all the good the Society has been instrumental in effecting during its brief existence in Canada. On this point they are thankful in being able to refer to the testimony of the Bishop of Montreal, as given in the following letter to the Society's noble President:—

"Since I had the gratification of receiving a letter from your lordship relative to the introduction into this diocese of the operations of the Newfoundland and British North America School Society, and my acquiescence in that proposal, I have often intended to make some acknowledgment to the Society of the benefits which have thus far resulted from their endeavours in the field which has been here opened to them; but the ceaseless pressure of my occupations has caused me to be very tardy in the performance of this duty. I beg, however, that your lordship and the Society will accept my assurance of the value which I set upon their labours.

"You are aware, perhaps, that the Rev. Mr. Willoughby accompanied me in an extensive portion of my visitation, performed in the early part of last year; and not a few of the destitute settlements which we visited upon that journey have, in consequence of arrangements which he then put in train upon the spot, enjoyed the blessings which are dispensed by the Society. It is not to these settlements that they have been confined, and I hope that, by the blessing of a gracious God, they may enlarge themselves in different directions over the ample field which remains with little or no provision for scriptural education.

"I have also to be deeply thankful for efforts which have resulted more indirectly from the operations of the Society,—Mr. Willoughby, besides having received orders himself, and assumed an important and now highly flourishing charge in the city of Montreal, having been the means of procuring no less than six other gentlemen, whom I have ordained, and who are now labouring with fidelity and efficiency as ministers of Jesus Christ.

"It is a further satisfaction to me, that the books used in the schools of the Society are drawn in part from the stores of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge.

"May God strengthen and unite the hands of all who labour in the cause of His Church, and in the name of His blessed Son."

The Committee cannot omit this opportunity to express how deeply the Society stands indebted to the excellent Bishop of Montreal for the interest which, from its first introduction into his diocese, he has shewn on its behalf, and the invaluable assistance he has so cheerfully and readily given to it.

Had the Society but the means placed at its disposal for a few years, the most extensive good would soon follow, in the establishment of Scriptural Schools under the superintendence of the Missionary Clergy.

An institution of this kind is loudly called for : past neglect, and the recent determination of the local Legislature to establish a system of education to which the Bishop and Clergy, on religious grounds, feel it their duty to object, render it imperative that a vigorous and immediate effort should be made to counteract the evil by the extension of the Society's operations.

On this subject the Bishop has expressed his mind, by recommending to a body of his Clergy recently assembled at Montreal to memorialise the Society,—a fact which, though it may gratify your Committee, as shewing how the Society is regarded by those best able to appreciate its character, cannot but deeply pain them to be compelled to return no other answer than one of sympathy, solely because they have not funds to make the necessary grants.

It is earnestly hoped that this statement may stimulate the friends of the Society to renewed and vigorous efforts to increase its pecuniary resources.

“ You will be pleased to see, from the report of the Superintendent, that the Society's schools are much appreciated throughout the colony, and that they are powerful means, under God's blessing, of creating a rapidly increasing interest in all that regards the promotion of religious knowledge among the rising generation. Each school having for its distinct superintendant the resident missionary of the place, it is found that the good resulting from the Society's aid does not merely confine itself to the welfare of the children, but extends to the parents and elder branches, who, through the attention and instruction which they see bestowed upon the young, learn to regard the message of their pastor with increasing earnestness. Instances have frequently come under my observation of parents who, from being habitual violators of the Sabbath, have, from the above causes, been led regularly to attend the house of God. A clergyman, in whose mission the Society has established seven schools, which have been for some time in operation, assured me that he knew not, under God, a more powerful engine for reaching the hearts and engaging the affections of parents in behalf of religion, than that which the Society had afforded by enabling him to establish and superintend schools, giving instruction to upwards of 500 of their children. Not unfrequently, on entering one of these schools, may you see the parent bending with eager interest and attention over his child, to listen to those simple truths which your teachers disseminate from holy writ, and which are equally able to make both wise unto salvation. Several of your teachers, under the sanction of the Bishop of this diocese, afford very material assistance to clergymen who, owing to their widely extended mission, are not able to hold Divine service at each station more than every alternate Sabbath. There exists at this present moment, and which has been but of recent growth, amongst the French Canadian Roman Catholics, a strong desire to bring their children under the tuition of English masters. Even the poorest classes are willing, in many instances, to deprive themselves of the common necessities of life, in order that they may pay for their children's education.

"In my own mission I have, within the last few months, established a school, under the guidance of a converted Roman Catholic, who for six years has given full proof of his sincerity in learning and teaching the truth as it is in Jesus. He has now nearly twenty French Roman Catholics under his instruction, who are daily taught by him from the Scriptures of truth, are made to commit large portions of it to memory, and are led to seek a throne of grace through Jesus Christ. Several of his elder pupils already display much anxiety to know the truth, by purchasing Testaments, and by their eagerness to make themselves masters of their contents. Most of our schools throughout this colony embrace Roman Catholics within their fold; and we cannot but hope and pray that God, in His gracious purposes, will crown our humble efforts with His divine blessing.

"Applications from all quarters, especially from those where our schools exist, are made for the Society's aid; and I believe, if we had but funds, there are few, if any, who would not gladly avail themselves of our helping hand. In Montreal, our Sunday school, under the direction of the superintendent, seems to meet, in a most especial manner, with the Lord's blessing. Here are regularly assembled between three and four hundred children, and the number increases upon us so rapidly, that we are now going to lengthen our cords and build a new school-house. The teachers, who are numerous, meet every week for consideration of the passage of Scripture they intend to use on the following Sunday, and for seeking God's gracious guidance and blessing upon it. There is also a District Visiting Society springing up from it, which promises much good: an excellent and extensive loan library is attached to it, from which we trust not only the children, but their parents, in many instances, derive signal benefit. A powerful machinery is at work, which we doubt not is approved of God; and from the witness we have of His Spirit working in the hearts of these little ones, we cannot but rejoice to think that there are many among them whom God numbers as His dear children. The Montreal gaol has been, for a considerable period, a sphere of labour in which your agent has been engaged. Here he has regularly, each Sabbath, assembled the prisoners for Divine worship, instituted loan libraries, distributed French and English Bibles and Testaments (which are in constant use), besides disseminating numerous religious tracts. Situations have been provided for those willing to work, on their discharge; clothing procured for the needy; houses of probation for the unfortunate; and the travelling expenses defrayed for those going homewards. Classes have been formed among the prisoners under sentence of transportation, in which they have learned to read their Bible; and there are not wanting instances in which it may be hoped the teaching has been accompanied with the power of God's Spirit. Letters have been received from a convict after his departure for New South Wales, in which he expresses the liveliest gratitude for having been taught to know and love his Bible, and which he affirms he is daily in the habit of reading to his fellow-convicts assembled around him. Here the murderer has been visited in his cell, and taught to understand and pray over the word of life. Your agent desires especially to record the blessing which apparently accompanied the gift of one out of a most liberal grant of 'Sinners' Friends,' to a prisoner under sentence of death. His remark after its perusal, when found studying the Word of God, was, 'The Bible is a new book to me after reading this little work: now I see Christ in every part of it.'"

On behalf of the French Canadians your Committee feel a deep interest, and should rejoice to be able to multiply schools amongst them, especially at a period when a spirit of inquiry has from various causes been excited, which, if directed aright, might issue in the most important and beneficial results. Surely so providential and promising an opening will not be suffered to remain unoccupied, when apparently the only barrier is the want of pecuniary assistance; but that Protestant Christians will remember the debt of gratitude which they owe to God, and of responsibility to their fellow-men, and liberally come forward to assist in so good and so great a work.

In connexion with this branch of your Society's operations your Committee have peculiar pleasure, in which they feel sure this meeting will largely share, gratefully to acknowledge the handsome present from his Lordship, the President of the Society, of 500 copies of the Book of Common Prayer in French, for circulation among the French Canadians; and also 300 in English, for use in the different schools.

His Lordship's presence forbids the Committee indulging in such expressions as might suitably convey their sense of his kindness in this, as in many former tokens, of regard for the Society's welfare. They can only, therefore, add their earnest prayer, that his Lordship's object in the bestowment of this gift may be fully answered, and that it may be the means of inculcating and promoting the great principles of the Reformation as held and taught in the formularies of our Church.

Your Committee will give a brief extract of a letter from another of their ordained agents. He writes :—

“ With the small pecuniary assistance which the Society kindly rendered, I was enabled to establish seven day schools ; the gross number of children admitted to the schools was upwards of 450. All of them have large and flourishing Sunday schools. In one place in which a school had been established upwards of a year by means of a small grant of 12*l*. (the only one they had previously, consisting of fifteen or twenty children, was conducted by a deaf old man), there are now 112 on the books, and during the last winter the average daily attendance was about seventy. The Scriptures are daily read, and the school, with the Sunday school attached, has, we believe, been a great blessing to that neighbourhood. Several Roman Catholic children have attended, and learned to read the Scriptures.

“ All the schools I have visited usually once a fortnight ; they are truly scriptural schools, and we trust that under the Divine blessing they have, and yet may to a far greater extent, prove beneficial, not only to the children but to parents themselves. In some of the schools the children have made very considerable improvement.”

Such is a brief statement of the gratifying progress which, through the blessing of God, the Society has made in this field of its labours, since the planting of its first school in Sherbrooke in the month of January, 1839.

Your Committee, in conclusion, have much pleasure in recording the readiness with which the present Governor-General, Sir Charles Bagot, K.C.B., so kindly consented to become one of the Vice-Patrons of the Society, and expressed himself interested in its welfare. Other classes of the inhabitants have come forward to its support ; and the people themselves, whose benefit is more immediately concerned, hail it as a boon.

Surely, then, there is reason enough for the Committee to close their Report as they began—in the spirit of humble gratitude ; and, on a review of the past year's labours and blessings, to thank God and take courage.

HOME PROCEEDINGS.

For the year ending April, 1841, it will be remembered that there was a balance in favour of the Society, and an actual increase of receipts upon those of the former year.

For the year ending April, 1842, the Treasurer's account shews a balance in his hands of 32*l.* 18*s.* 2*d.*; though the Committee regret to have to state, that their receipts have not reached the amount of the preceding year by the sum of 239*l.* 0*s.* 4*d.*

The reason of the balance being in their favour, notwithstanding this falling off in their receipts, is chiefly because the Society had no debt to commence the year with; nor has there been any material additional charge on the Society's funds.

But the Committee would not be dealing honestly were they to conceal their anxiety as to the future. The liabilities of the Society for the current year will be very much greater, consequent upon the extension of the Society's operations, which had become necessary, if it were to prove itself not unworthy of colonial confidence and support, or answer the great end of its institution.

An additional grant of 200*l.* has been made to Canada; and in order to meet a few only of the most painful and pressing applications, your Committee were obliged to engage six additional masters, three of whom have been elected with a view to labour in Canada, and the others for schools awaiting them in Newfoundland.

Under these circumstances, it is not without concern that your Committee have to report a diminution of income after the gradual increase of the three preceding years; and the more so, as such diminution has not been in the item of Donations, which necessarily fluctuate, and which in the past year have much increased, but in the remittances from the Associations, which have failed by no less a sum than 289*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.*

Your Committee can, however, in some measure account for this, by having received in the previous year some considerable sums, which had been gained to the Society by the Rev. Henry Budd and other friends, the former having visited and preached in several places on its behalf. And they have the further satisfaction to state, that several of their old Associations, and especially those of the Ladies' in and near the metropolis, have made some as large, and others even larger, remittances than formerly; and that several new places have been visited, in some of which Associations have been formed.

They would earnestly hope, therefore, that the deficiency in this main source of their strength is but temporary, though they cannot but regard it as a strong ground for earnest pleading on the Society's behalf.

The entire receipts during the past year, at home and abroad, have amounted to 3470*l.* 9*s.* 9*d.*; and the payments, 3437*l.* 11*s.* 7*d.*: leaving the balance as stated in favour of the Society of 32*l.* 18*s.* 2*d.*

The sums raised in Canada and Newfoundland the Committee have appropriated to school extension in each colony, by which arrangement it is hoped that local efforts will be still more encouraged and promoted.

In enumerating the kind offices of many of the Society's friends, the Committee have to mention that, in consequence of the unexpected failure of the firm of which the Society's late esteemed Treasurer was the head, and to whom in its earlier years it was deeply indebted; application was made to John Deacon, Esq. to relieve the Society of its embarrassment by accepting the vacant office: which that gentleman, in the kindest manner, most readily consented to do.

The thanks of the Committee are also due to the Rev. Henry Budd, who, they regret to state, has been prevented attending the present anniversary by indisposition; to the Rev. Messrs. Bridge and Burt, from Newfoundland, and several other Clergy, who have either given their pulpits or in other ways very materially assisted the Society during the year. Such help the Committee deem particularly valuable. Nor must they omit to express their obligation to the Secretaries and Officers of the Associations, on whose interest and trouble so much of local support depends; and especially to those Ladies who have, with such unremitting attention, exerted themselves on the Society's behalf.

They would desire also to mention, with much thankfulness, the large and liberal donations which have been received* from several of the Society's friends; by means of which your Committee have the satisfaction to state they have been enabled to make larger grants, both for Canada and Newfoundland, than otherwise they could have done.

But your Committee must again, with all the earnestness in their power, commend the strong and urgent claims of the Society to the kind consideration of the friends and advocates of a sound Scriptural Education.

In Canada, no other provision than what your Society furnishes does as yet exist, on any general scale, for imparting to the members of the Church an education based upon her principles and conducted by her members; while the Bill recently sanctioned by the Legislature, for the purpose of promoting education, is of so objectionable a character, as to render it difficult for the Church population to participate in its benefits.

In Newfoundland, schools which had been originated at the public expense are now closed; and it is feared, that if any new grant be made it will be fettered with conditions similar to those which existed under the former act,—excluding or grievously damaging that particular branch of education so essential to man's best interests, both here and hereafter: while the Society furnishes the only means which the island possesses of communicating religious knowledge in a way altogether unexceptionable, and, if properly supported, there is no hinderance to its extension commensurate with the wants of the population.

* Among others, 100*l.* from a Lady: also 50*l.* and 30*l.* from two sisters; two sums of 50*l.* each, one of 30*l.*, one of 25*l.*, three of 20*l.* each, five of 10*l.* 10*s.* each, three of 10*l.* each, &c. &c.

These facts, duly considered, must surely convince Christian men of their duty and responsibility in this matter; and the more so when it is considered what self-denying efforts the people themselves, encouraged by their Bishops and Clergy, are now making to secure to their children the blessings of Bible instruction: thus evincing an anxiety on their part to possess the advantages which your Society is designed and fitted to convey, and supplying strong motive and encouragement for liberal assistance.

In Newfoundland, in addition to their contributions, many of the poor people have offered to build school-houses and contribute towards the maintenance of the master; and in some places they have actually erected the buildings, in the hope that their forwardness would be argument enough to British Christians at home to send them proper and well-qualified masters.

From many a harbour and many a settlement the appeal is constantly reaching your Committee—"Come over and help us;" "Establish one of your useful schools here, as you have done in other places, and send us also a master to teach us and our little ones."

There are thousands living in scattered and isolated settlements, along one line of coast of 900 miles in extent, among whom, till recently, little or nothing has been done. New missions are being opened in these destitute parts, in reference to which the Bishop observes, "The missionary system must embrace the establishment of schools;" which his Lordship is most anxious the Society should undertake. From his Chaplain, the Society's Superintendant, the same applications are again and again made. "Send us out more labourers. We must continue to cry out, 'More money! More men!' This is an important crisis in the educational concerns of this colony. Our missionaries feel that the Society's schools are as right arms to them, and from all quarters do they apply to me to send them teachers."

Such are the claims which your Committee have had to contend with; heartily desiring, on the one hand, largely to extend their operations and send out many more labourers, while, on the other, they have been restrained only by the painful inadequacy of their finances.

To stand still, however, was felt, after the most careful and prudential considerations, quite impossible. There are places which could no longer be left without a master; and your Committee have to beg the attention of this meeting, and to press it on the memory of their friends, that, with an income not larger than was necessary to meet existing liabilities, they have, in faith which they trust will not be disappointed, added six men to their band of faithful and devoted missionary schoolmasters, who are on the eve of departure for their important labours.

But this must call for increased support from friends at home, as it will undoubtedly encourage and promote corresponding efforts abroad.

Nor can your Committee doubt, when the blessing of God is so evidently and so largely resting on the Society's operations, that the friends who have so often and so long felt interested in its welfare will cordially respond to this appeal; or that others, hearing what God has done and is doing by means of the Society, will not rejoice to aid its simple but blessed endeavours to spread that knowledge, in the possession and enjoyment of which stands eternal life.

In confidence, therefore, they shall not plead in vain, do your Committee commend the Society to the prayers, the sympathy, and liberal support of all who love and value the truth as it is in Jesus; remembering that it is written, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might: for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest."

AT ST. BRIDE'S CHURCH, FLEET STREET, ON WEDNESDAY EVENING, MAY 11, 1842.

THE LAW OF CHRISTIAN COLONIZATION.

"Therefore they that were scattered abroad, went everywhere preaching the Word."—Acts viii. 4.

THE Society, whose cause has brought us together this evening, my brethren, directs its attention so strictly and entirely to a portion of our Colonies, that we are naturally led by its constitution to consider that part of the Missionary work, which belongs especially to the system of Christian Colonization. And this is, at this time, a subject of peculiar moment. It is one, upon which depends the happiness, for time and for eternity of a great number of men; it is one, in which we as a people have long been taking by far the most active part, of any Christian nation in the world; and it is therefore one, in relation to which we must either be incurring great guilt as a people, and so provoking God's sore judgments against us, or one in which we are glorifying His name, who has multiplied us so exceedingly, that our seed is flowing west and east and north and south, and gaining in every clime and in every land a new inheritance for our race. And it is, therefore, a subject, brethren, of deep interest to every one, who loves his country; to every one, who desires to see his God honoured in his country; to every one, who believes that God's blessing is that which truly exalts a people, and that His curse is that, under which it is surely withered and abased. No arm of man can stand against that curse, nor any wisdom of man turn aside its sentence.

And in order to enter into this subject, then, brethren, let us endeavour first to ascertain what are some of the palpable and clear duties, which the founding of Colonies must entail upon a Christian people; and then we shall be in a condition to examine how far, in Newfoundland and British North America especially, we as a people have fulfilled, in any considerable measure, the duties so entailed upon us.

I. Now the verse which we have read, supplies us, I think, with the general principle we need.

Very soon after the founding of the Church of Christ, the persecution broke out, in which the blessed martyr St. Stephen suffered. After his death, as is wont, the flame burst forth with a new energy, and "there was a great persecution against the Church, which was at Jerusalem." Then the words of their Lord rose up in the minds of the disciples; and "being persecuted in one city," they "fled unto another." For this was His provision for the spread of His Gospel. They "went forth weeping," but "bearing with them precious seed;" and as they went, they scattered it freely. They "went everywhere, preaching the Word." Not because some special injunction had then been laid upon them individually, that they should do so, but because it was of the very nature of their faith so to do; because they could not have, without giving; because their manna could not be stored; because these waters of life could not be dammed up; because every heart of man, which had been set free by the blessed sound of Christ's Gospel, felt at once its "debt to Jew and to Greek," to learned and to unlearned, to bond and to free; because a "necessity was laid upon them," that they must preach the Gospel. And so its sound went on, brethren. In weariness and in want, in peril and in painfulness, did these scattered men pass on; two and two they went forth, they wandered abroad, they entered into strange cities. Their coming made no noise at the time. Two more houseless wanderers were added to that city's throng; so it seemed to the dull eye of the world, as it looked idly on; but with those two and two there was a power, which was about even to overturn that world. And what was it, brethren, which gave these men their might? They did but speak to men of "one Jesus, which was dead, whom they affirmed to be alive;" they did but wash with water men, children and women, of contrite hearts, who listened to them; they did but bless bread and wine, and break, and give with prayer and holy words to those that had followed, and cast their burdens upon that Lord. And straightway these were new men; all "old things had passed away" from them, and "behold, all things were become new." Family, and riches, and connections, and life itself—these were nothing to them. And the madness spread, as it seemed, from one to another. Those who listened to them—they too took up the burden, and they went forth at once upon this world wandering; they could not help discharging the very same duty and the very same office, that these had borne. And soon the very foundations of society were visibly shaken by the onward flow of this secret stream; and the world, and its god, and its lusts, and its followers raged vainly, and lifted up fire and sword in vain, against the meek, suffering, secret, but irresistible strength, which was bearing down utterly them and their way.

And there was this principle in all these men: that wherever and however they were scattered they must still go "preaching the Word." This was a necessity of their new nature. It could not be weaned from them; nothing could put it down.

And herein, brethren, we may find the very principle of Christian colonization. The first point in which is this: that Christian men, wherever they are scattered by God's Providence, and wherever they are dispersed amongst those who know not the sound of the Gospel, are bound by the very necessity of their Christian character, to begin to impart this knowledge to others; that this is the very purpose of God in so scattering them; that whatever is His instrument in causing the scattering, whether it is persecution (as it was in the case of these men), or whether it is what we consider a more ordinary working of His Providence—whether it is the necessity of men going abroad and forming new connections in order to support their families,—whatever it is, it is one of the ways, in which God is "scattering" men for this object, that they may sow His seed, that they may carry it with them, that they may sprinkle it on the right hand and on the left, as those who know that it is the seed of life, with which the Gentiles must be sown; and therefore, that those who do go, and who do not spread His faith, do in truth rebel against Him, just as much as they would rebel against Him, brethren, if He sent them on a specific charge, which charge they in wilfulness refused to fulfil; that there is no difference; that whether God speaks by His Providence, or whether God speaks by His Word, or whether God speaks by the message of an angel, God's Word is the same in all, and that we cannot break it without striving against God.

And here, therefore, is at once, brethren, one mark, which should be impressed upon every Christian colony, just because it is a Christian colony. If it were but a going forth for a time, if it were but a scattering of Christian men for a season amongst others, who know not Christ, even then it would imply thus much, that they were bound to "go forth preaching the Word," carrying with them to the land of their pilgrimage the blessed message of salvation. And if this is the duty even of the passing pilgrim, who takes but for a season his residence up at one place or another,—if he owes this to his halting-place, how far greater is the burden laid upon Christian colonists! For what does the Christian colonist do? He goes forth to occupy another land, to sow it with the seed of man and of beast, to found a nation; he comes to acquire a new possession, and to hand it down to his descendants, and to the descendants of his nation. But he finds this far land already peopled; there dwell in it already other races of men, who know not all that he knows; men who have no skill to dig out of the earth beneath them the various store of riches which it contains, and to turn them to the use of man; men who have not got the skill to make the fields laugh with corn, and to make the uplands abound in flocks, but who obtain, it may be, a hard subsistence from a wasteful occupation of a wide extent of land, living for the most part as hunters or the like, and so being few supported hardly over a wide coast. And he sets himself down beside these people; perhaps by purchase, as he calls it, they knowing but little what is the value of that which he gives, he acquires some title to some of their soil, and then he is settled there. And in a while he increases and multiplies; and the original dwellers in the land are straitened and dwindled; and he takes day by day more of what he needs under the different changing circumstances of the day, and they day by day lose more of that which they too need for their mode of life. Now what is there, brethren, which can justify a Christian nation in acting upon this system at all. Mere superiority in strength clearly cannot; it is quite clear, that our being able to go and take the land of a weaker tribe, is no sort of reason why we should go and do it—no sort of justification according to the law of God. There must be a better title than mere strength, to make any title at all. And no doubt there is a better title to a Christian people, in the original grant by God of this earth to man, and in the universal law—"Increase and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it." No doubt, this law of God is His warrant, as the borders of a Christian nation grow too strait for them, for their sending forth the swarms of an increasing population into lands, which, comparatively speaking, are still uninhabited. But then this grant cannot be without its conditions. It cannot be the right of the Christian man, to go and to thrust ont his brother, while he proposes to sit down beside him. It cannot be his right, to take and not to give; for there is no such law throughout God's whole rule. He is bound, therefore, to use his greater power and his greater knowledge, his arts and his sciences, which he carries over with him—he is bound to use all these to bless the people, amongst whom he comes. And if, instead of doing this, he seeks only to thrust them out and to seize upon their inheritance, what else is he in God's sight, than a robber and a murderer? What else is a Christian people, who so deal, in the sight of a God of justice, brethren, but a nation (so far) of robbers and murderers? And above all, this Christian Colonist is bound to give to these people the true knowledge of God. He is bound to give them that, which is, above all things, the chiefest boon: that which shall overpay all that which he receives from them of earthly things, which they lose of earthly things at first. He is bound to give them Christ's Word, Christ's promises, Christ's sacraments. In a word, he is bound to bring the Church of Christ, in its fulness, in its freedom, in its purity, to be the converter, the saver, and the blessing of these people. And the Christian nation, therefore, which attempting to colonise neglects these duties, is breaking the only condition, upon which she can claim a right to share in the inheritance of another tribe. She can but claim to go forth, brethren, in this way, to do good to others, as well as herself; she can but claim to go forth for the good of those whom she visits, as well as for the good of those whom she takes. In Christ's name it is, that she professes to go forth,—to go forth in His name to possess and to replenish the earth; to set up His kingdom, who is the Lord of all; to welcome into brotherhood and freedom, into the peace and blessedness of Christ's faith, the heathen wanderers, among whom she plants her children, as to them the very seed of life.

And such has always been the profession, brethren, of this nation of ours, for instance, when pushing on the lengthening chain of her vast colonial occupation. If we turn to any of the patents given of old time to the great and brave men of our nation, which spread so far through the world in this way the name and the power of England,—if we turn to the great ages of British colonization, we shall find, that all of those public instruments declare with one voice, that these settlements and colonies are planned, in order that with the temporal advantages, which we hope under God's blessing to reap from them, we may spread the name and the kingdom of our Master, by gathering into it the heathen people, and by making them sharers in the blessings of Christ's religion. And it is a special condition in the patents and grants, granted and made by our kings and our queens in old time, that the merchants and the colonisers, who settled in these lands, should maintain a certain number of instructors amongst the heathen people around them, that so the settling of the English there may be a blessing, and not a curse, to the people dwelling there. The great statesmen of that day, brethren, saw full well this truth: that by no other right or title could we pretend to occupy the earth in this work of colonization, than in this right and title—that we went in God's name as the blessers of our brethren. They saw, that by pretending to settle colonists, we came voluntarily under this charge, and that we really could not shake it off; and they boldly put it forth, upon the very face of all their documents. They boldly declared, that it was the pith and the substance of the title deed of England to those new inheritances, which she was working out for herself; that she was going as Christ's minister amongst the people that dwelt there, to benefit them and not to curse them.

And this, observe, agrees exactly with the whole apparent plan of God for the spreading of His truth, and that especially since the cessation of the power of working miracles in His Church. For by the natural law of God's appointment, Christian nations must be the colonizing nations. The greater value of human life in every Christian land, the greater purity of manners of every Christian land, the greater kindness of man to man, and so the greater shelter for the weak and infirm amongst us—all these which follow in the train of Christianity, and which abound so in this land of ours, naturally make Christian people the most numerous, and so lead to their being the nations, which naturally throw off their swarms into the less peopled districts of the earth. Again: the higher moral and intellectual tone of Christendom will naturally lead it to be thus the source of the great sowing of the earth with the seed of man, because it naturally leads to the patient daring, to the untiring effort, to the wise plans, through which all of these great works of sowing new people can only be brought to a proper effect. And Christianity, moreover, and Christianity only, is that which furnishes a land which it leavens, with the resources of wealth and power, which make such enterprises possible, or even desirable in men's eyes. So that here we see a whole series of appointments of God's providence, by which it is evidently intended by Him, that Christian people should be the great founders of colonies, in order that by this natural law of His appointment, Christian nations may spread the truth of His Gospel throughout the world.

And so, in point of fact, we find them. All the colonies, which the world has seen for centuries past, have flown forth from Christendom; and they have settled amongst tribes, who knew not the Lord or His Christ, and who, as the plain result of that ignorance, have been weak and uncivilised, and (which is well worthy of remark, brethren, and which is a most awful feature in this picture,) who have been in almost every case, even before the stronger race of Christian Europeans came amongst them, wasting away in power and number; who through the natural working of their own vices, which by degrees had eaten out the national character amongst them, though they had once been great, had now begun to waste away. So that in almost every instance, when we have come to these lands, we have found traditions amongst them, that they were much more numerous than they are now; showing that God in the fulness of time, and just when their ignorance of Christ and their servitude to the things of the world was beginning to work out its accomplishment, when the time of these Gentiles was fully come, when God's hand was already laid upon them in judgment, just at that time it was, that by the dispensations of His secret will He so ordered it, that this nation should come to their shores, with the message of that Gospel, which is able to lift them up again from this debasement, and to give them back again to strength and to national existence, and to knit them up again as a nation, out of which they were slipping, and to build them up again to a people, from which they were falling.

So that here is an evident provision of the Most High, brethren, for preaching the everlasting Gospel of His Son throughout the earth. Here is a provision, by which the natural wants of man shall fit him, and almost force him, to become the herald of the message of salvation. Here is a deep law, laid in the very foundations of society, which shall send forth the Christian nation, even without its directly meaning a Missionary work, but in order that it may relieve its own necessities, to the dark and benighted places of the earth. And here, therefore, there is one of those remarkable instances of the harmony between God's natural appointments and the appointments of His grace: one of those things, which it is only for Christian men to notice, and to see directly, that it binds upon their conscience a new obligation of service, and therefore that every Christian people is for that reason too especially bound to make its colonies the outposts of the Christian faith.

Because, brethren, it is only thus that it can fulfil the universal law, "Increase and multiply and replenish the earth," consistently with justice. It is only thus, that it can knit into one the race to which it comes with the race which it pours forth and settles. It is only thus, that this great problem can be solved, which because we have never perhaps endeavoured to solve it in full faithfulness, has never yet been fully solved—how civilization and barbarism can be brought together, without the barbarous people being destroyed by the Christian people. And thus only, no doubt, can the two races be brought together. Instead of the stronger preying upon the weaker, as it has been too often, thus only can they be wedded together as one people. By sowing through Christianity the seed of national revival of life in a dwindling people, into which the stronger element is thus inserted,—by this, and by this only, can the destruction of the weaker be prevented.

Nor is it difficult, brethren, to see how this plain duty is to be fulfilled. A two-fold provision is evidently implied. First, for the maintenance of their true faith amongst the Colonists, who go forth; and then, beyond this a provision for spreading the power of Christ's Gospel among the heathen tribes around it. The first is needful, because the Christian nation which sends forth a Colony, incurs by that very act this debt of spiritual provision to her exiled children. She is about to plant a nation, and this act makes it needful that she should also plant a Church. She can have no right to cast forth the children God has given her, as aliens from the Christian fold; she can have no right, brethren, to tempt them by the promise of greater worldly prosperity into the spiritual wilderness, and to leave their souls to perish there. As she is bound to provide all that is needful to nourish into natural life the tender and unskilled infancy of the newly planted settlement, so by a far higher obligation, even by the obligation of spiritual parentage, she is bound to provide for the reproduction of that Christian faith and polity, which was at home the best birthright of her children. And the due discharge of this obligation is, in point of fact, the first step towards her right performance of the second duty,—of spreading, I mean, the Gospel amongst the heathen around her; for in maintaining in its proper life and vigour the true faith of Christ amongst her sons, she will far the most efficiently convey it to the heathen around. The sight of Christian peace, and Christian truth, and Christian unity and holiness, in the lives of God's saints—this, brethren, has ever been amongst the chiefest instruments, whereby God has touched the hearts of those, who know Him not as yet. To see how these Christians love one another—this from the very beginning has been one of the chiefest arguments with the heathen nations. And this, then, is her duty: to make all needful provision for keeping alive the Christian faith amongst her own sons, and then for spreading it amongst the people round them; for enabling her sons to send out the knowledge of the truth to all the heathen, with whom they barter and have dealings; that instead of transmitting to them merely their vices, they may transmit to them the blessed healing of the Sun of Righteousness, the blessed rule of God's law, and the unspeakable blessedness of being brought into covenant with Him, and dwelt in by God's Holy Spirit.

II. And now, brethren, if we turn from this part of our subject to the second,—if we go on, that is, to inquire how far, in these North American colonies of ours, we, the English people, have fulfilled these charges laid upon us, we are truly met, by thoughts which are fearful indeed to every Christian and to every Englishman. Let only a very few of the facts of the case, out of a multitude which might be quoted, sink into our minds.

And first take this: compare for a moment the cost, at which we maintain our civil state, with that which we have been willing to incur, in order to maintain

Christianity among our people, and to spread the Gospel in this region of Newfoundland. We find, that upon our police we expend annually £1,000, that upon our judicial establishment we expend £6,225, that in the civil department of our government we expend £4,594; but that the whole ecclesiastical establishment, which we have provided for that people, amounts to but £440 per annum. And this is not, brethren, from the abundance of the provision for the spiritual needs of this people; it is not because they have been able to do so much for themselves, that they have needed us to do little for them. No, brethren, it cannot be so; for the people in that land are poor scattered people, mostly fishermen, people earning a hard livelihood upon an inhospitable coast, and transmitting the main fruits of their earnings to this land. And if we ask what is actually the case, we find that throughout that land there are vast tracts of country peopled with our settlers, which have no knowledge of God provided for them whatever, no minister of God's word, no teacher of children, no observance of God's day. We find, that these things have died out amongst them. Our bishop goes round and tells us that he finds places where the settlers have lost the memory of which is the Lord's day. In letters before me at this time I read of settlements, which contain (besides a number of other people) from 400 to 500 who profess themselves members of our own Church, to whom except two passing visits, no minister of any denomination has ever been near. And this, brethren, is but a specimen. What must it be, when we know that there are 1,200 miles of sea coast along the island of Newfoundland alone, (to say nothing of Canada,) along which there is now a population which is supposed to reach to as many as 80,000 souls, who are scattered throughout that district of 1,200 miles, and that with the utmost exertions made by this Society, and by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, there are only 300 miles out of the whole 1,200, along which there are any ministers of God's Word, any schools, any teachers, any record (as far as we are concerned) that these people came forth from a Christian land; that there are 900 out of the 1,200 miles, unvisited by any Protestant minister, or any Protestant teacher of youth whatever?—that this multitude of people, brethren, are sent out from our land for our necessity, are led to settle there by our policy, and there are left to forget the faint rudiments of Christianity, which haply they carried with them across those seas?

And then, brethren, if this be our conduct to our own people, if this be our best discharge of those duties which lay so plainly and palpably upon us, what have we done with regard to the heathen nations around them? We found two distinct races of men inhabiting that one island of Newfoundland, when we went there—the Esquimaux and the Red men of India; we found traces that they were at that time a populous people,—that they had enclosed their hunting ground with expensive and laborious works, marking the multitude of hands, that must have been employed to bring these works to completion; we found, that in the year 1811, these people were seen in one place in as many as 400 or 500 of their number, but that it was supposed that at that time there had been a great diminution in their number, because the island of Newfoundland alone contains as much as 36,000 square miles, and there were marks of its having been, for a barbarous country, numerous inhabited. Now this was the first Colony, brethren that the English Crown made; this was, our first beginning in sowing the barren lands with the seed of men; many, many years ago this was done, and we have gone on from that day to this, possessing it and drawing riches from it. And if we ask—And what have we done for those two tribes of people whose lands we were occupying? what blessed news of God did we bring nigh them? how many have we converted to Christianity? what efforts have we made to bring them into the Church of Christ? how far is our nation clear from their souls' blood?—brethren, let the public documents of our land answer this question. It stands written in the printed reports of the evidence taken before a Committee of the House of Commons in the year 1826—it stands written in that official return, what England has done in this matter. An officer is brought up to give evidence before that Committee: and these are some of the questions and the answers, which are now written down in the public records of England, to show what she did in this land for the glory of her Master. "What number," was one of the questions—"what number, do you suppose, of the Aborigines now remain in the island of Newfoundland?" This was in the year 1826; and the answer, brethren, was this: "I apprehend that none remain." Through those 36,000 square miles, this had been the work of England. And the next question which I will give you, was this: "Had any attempt been made to impart to them the benefits of civilization and Christianity?" And the answer given was—"I think none." Another question was this: "Then the effect of the visits of civilized Christian men, as far as Newfoundland is concerned, has been, you believe, the entire extirpation of the whole body of the natives?" And the answer was this: "It has had that effect, I have no doubt."

Here then, brethren, is the case lying upon us. And those who do believe in the government of a righteous God, must tremble when they know that we have been guilty of such deeds in His sight; they must tremble, when they know, that

He that holds the scales of the earth does make inquisition for blood. But let us not tremble only, brethren. Let us give way to no merely vain regrets, that so it has been. Let us, in God's strength, rise up and do. Let us remember, that each one of us has his share in this guilt, if according to our means and opportunity, we do not endeavour to redress it. As far, indeed, as these men are concerned, nothing can be done; it is one of the fearful characters of sin, that after a season of continuance in it, its effects cannot be undone. These races have passed away; there remains not one more, to whom we can show love for their fathers' sake, and to manifest our deep repentance. But, brethren, at least for this remnant of our own people,—at least for this multitude, ranging between 70,000 and 80,000 souls,—at least for these 900 miles, out of 1,200, where the Gospel is not heard with its healing sound,—at least for these men, brethren, within little more than eight or ten days' distance from us, by the improvements in recent navigation,—at least for these let us make some exertions, to show that we do repent of our sin and of our fathers' sin, and that we will, God helping us, be up and doing.

This Society was founded, brethren, for this very purpose. It was founded by those, who knowing that land knew the deep needs, the great necessities of our people, who settled there. It was founded in the year 1823, in order to send schoolmasters and to provide schools, for the destitute children of this great population. And the admirable character of this Society really cannot be overrated among Christian people. It has the most remarkable incidental testimonies to the excellence of its conduct. It was only when recently the Bishop, the new Bishop of Newfoundland visited and inspected that diocese, and saw what the teachers had been doing, that he gave it his high commendation; and finding these men engaged, earnestly, humbly, and sincerely, and according to the temper of Christ's Gospel, in labouring amongst these schools, he chose out six of these our teachers, to give them Deacon's Orders, that they might under him, bearing Christ's commission, be able in the lack of other clergy, to supply the spiritual necessities of the people, —throwing a remarkable approbation backward upon the management of this Society in times past; that while there was no bishop there, while there was no regular ecclesiastical superintendant, while therefore they had to labour under the difficulties, which we all so well know, of conducting operations at a distance, and without the aids and machinery which the full organization of the Church of Christ supplies—even without all of these so well had the Committee chosen, and so wisely had they administered the funds, with which they had been intrusted, that when the Bishop came there at last he could do nothing better, than at once to choose out of these our teachers these six men, not to take them from us, but to add to them this new character, to make them schoolmasters and deacons in the Church of Christ, that they might relieve still more the wants of the perishing population around them.

And another great praise of this Society is, the great good that it has done with little means. The income of the Society was £4,148 last year; and it has now above 6,000 children in its schools in Canada and in Newfoundland together. So that here, with these six deacons and this vast body of scholars scattered throughout that land, it is laying out its funds frugally, sparingly, and as Christian men should minister the trust money of sacred charity; doing much with little profession, with little noise, but through God's grace, we trust, preparing the way for a future harvest in that land.

And what makes this the more important, brethren, is the peculiar importance, which has lately been given by recent discoveries to the character of that settlement of Newfoundland. For it has been discovered, that from the other side of it, from that where our main and earliest settlements were made, there are all the things which are needed to make settlements flourishing and important: great facilities for supplying native timber, and beds of coal and other subterranean treasures, which may make that the centre of a great people hereafter. And we, brethren, remember, are now forming that people; and if we will not send teachers of Christ's Gospel to them, if we let their youth grow up in heathenism, we shall make a great heathen people, and we shall have to re-convert them to the Christian faith, or to leave them as a heathen people of British origin.

This, brethren, is the case, that this Society lays before you this night in faith and in hope: in faith, that God will open your hearts; in hope, that you will give largely, as men that perceive that a great instrument of usefulness is set before you—that God has blessed you here with the opportunity of working a great work, at the delightful cost of sacrifice for Him—that God has put it in your power to be amongst those intercessors for the sins of a people, who turn aside his righteous indignation. For doubtless it is because in this land of ours there has been a multitude of people, who have prayed, and have wept, and have laboured, and have denied themselves, and have sent out Christ's Gospel, and have desired to wipe out this stain—for this reason it is doubtless, that God in His mercy has been bearing with us so long. But, brethren, if we suffer these evils to continue and to increase upon us, if we will do nothing to mark our indignation against ourselves and our zeal for God's glory, can it be but that God will abate our pride and abate our self-seeking by some signal punishment? Have we not seen, even within the last few hours,* how the breath of His mouth can in a moment sweep down the prosperity of ancient cities? Have we not seen how a passing spark can reduce into ashes the hoards of years—the wealth which has accumulated for centuries? And are we not in the hands of the same God? And do we not tempt Him, if we will not consecrate the first fruits to Him,—do we not tempt Him to deal with us by the same measure, and to send out the same avenging instruments to express His indignation against us?

Brethren, as a nation and as individuals, the danger is indeed great, if we will not listen to God's voice, and arise and build His temple. Remember those awful sentences of His, which He has written down in His law of old. Remember what He told the children of Israel, of old time, if they defiled themselves with the defilements of the nations, which He cast out before them, and through which the land was defiled, and for which He "visited the iniquity thereof upon it, and the land itself vomited out its inhabitants." His charge to Israel was—"Ye shall keep My statutes and My judgments, and shall not commit any of these abominations;" and the threat was—"That the land spue not you out also, when ye defile it, as it spued out the nations that were before you." And if God's judgments at our hand have overtaken the people, who were in this land before,—if it has spued out the inhabitants thereof, because the time of their judgment was full,—and if we now breed up in that same land a godless population, if we now breed up there our sons and our daughters to forget the God of heaven, and to do after all the iniquities which the people did that were there before, what are we doing, brethren, but preparing this vengeance for ourselves—that the land shall spue us out, even as it spued out the nations that were there before us?

And not for this cause only, brethren, but let us deny ourselves and work for our God, because of the infinite blessedness of so working: because we are redeemed men: because we know that Christ has died for us: because His Gospel is not bound: because each one of us has found in His cross the healing of our own hearts: because we have come to the full measure of His grace, and have received grace and strength to help us in our time of need: because in some measure, at least, the work of His grace has gone on in us: because we look to Him as our Father, and to the Lord Jesus as our Redeemer; because heaven opens its gates before us, beyond the tumults and the miseries of this world of sorrow: because we know the blessedness of labouring for Him, and of leading others to press in with ourselves into those opening gates: because we would bring souls to Christ: because we would bring them to the foot of His cross. Oh! brethren, if this be not our spirit, what are our own spiritual blessings profiting us? In spiritual things as in temporal, “there is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to penury.” There is many a man, doubtless, whom God has stricken with straitness of soul in things spiritual, because he has been lacking in love to his brother, and in a desire to impart of his own blessing to him. Brethren, let not this be our case to-night. Let us redeem our sons and our daughters—let us redeem them to the Lord, by blessing the sons and the daughters of these our countrymen upon this distant shore. Let us testify our thankfulness to the Lord, by bringing the gifts to Him, which are altogether unworthy of His acceptance, but which He is graciously pleased to receive. Let us come with humble prayer. Let us come, each one to-night, with some real sacrifice. Let us aid this Society, at its need: because though through God’s blessing it is at this moment out of debt, yet we have now six fresh teachers passing over the waters to that land, and we shall be either in debt or obliged to contract our exertions, unless God give you to-night liberal hearts, large measures, and the resolution to spend and to be spent for Him,—to give freely to Him, who gave up heaven for you; who bore the burden of humanity, who ascended into heaven, who is at the right hand of the Father, making intercession for you.

To whom, with the Father and the Holy Ghost, be ascribed all might, majesty and dominion, for ever and ever.

APPEAL.

THE Society was formed in 1823, for the purpose of establishing Schools in Newfoundland, on the principles of the Church of England.

In pursuance of this object, it has opened upwards of 60 daily, as well as Sunday and Adult Schools, instructed multitudes, not a few of whom are giving proof of the blessing of a Christian Education, and has put into circulation 17,372 Bibles and Testaments, besides large numbers of Prayer Books and other Religious publications. Its Teachers, in addition to conducting their Schools, have likewise acted as Catechists, under Ecclesiastical sanction; visiting the sick, distributing Tracts, and reading to the people on the Lord's day in Settlements deprived of all other means of grace.

The character of these labours and their happy result have received the highest commendation from the first consecrated Bishop of the Island, Dr. Spencer, who thus expresses himself—that the Schools have been among the greatest blessings which our gracious Lord has vouchsafed to that dreary and desolate land and moreover that they have been under God the main bulwark of the Protestant faith.

In accordance with such sentiments his Lordship has admitted seven of the Society's Masters into the Holy Order of Deacon and licensed the rest to act as Lay Readers as well as Schoolmasters.

The Committee are anxious at the suggestion of the Bishop, to extend their operations, recently commenced in a portion of the Island, containing thousands of Protestant Episcopalians, but hitherto without Churches or Schools, Pastors or Teachers.

They are only wanting pecuniary aid, immediately to open many Schools in these most destitute parts.

In Canada also, the prospects of the Society are just as cheering, and its demands as pressing. The Bishop of Montreal has borne the most gratifying testimony to its usefulness. All the principal Teachers sent out from England have been ordained and have had most important charges assigned to them. Schools have been got up under their superintendence at a cost of not more to the Parent Society, than from £10 to £20 per annum each. At present, there are Forty-two daily, as well as Sunday Schools in operation, and in such light are they regarded, that the Bishop has suggested to his Clergy to memorialize the Committee on the subject of School Extension.

The Society has ventured as far as its finances would allow, and must therefore look to the Christian Public for aid in this important work. Six new Masters have been recently elected for Canada and Newfoundland. Many more are still wanted. From the Superintendants both in Canada and Newfoundland, applications are constantly made to the Committee—“Our cry must be more money more men.” And shall that Appeal be made in vain. Must the tide of Emigration annually pour in its thousands, and shall there be no Christian effort to provide for them the bread and the water of life, of which in God's mercy we have such abundance crowning our other blessings. Let each one to whom God has bestowed any portion of His goods, consider his responsibility in this matter. Let him weigh well what God expects at his hands; what perishing souls ask; what helpless children crave; and let him remember nothing given for Christ's sake is lost or forgotten, for it is the promise of a faithful God—“He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and look what he layeth out, it shall be paid him again.”
